

Making marks matters!

- * Let your child see you writing (shopping lists, writing letters, etc)
- * Make marks everywhere (sticks in mud, fingers in sand, water and paintbrushes, chalk ...)
- * Have pens and paper ready – drawing matters
- * Scribbling is important too
- * Talk about, value and celebrate your child's drawings – whatever they look like

I'm writing a shopping list. Would you like to write one too?

I really like your picture. Can you tell me about it?

Would you like to help me to write your name?

This will help your child:

- * To see themselves as writers, to take ownership of the marks they make and feel good about the work they do
- * To have the chance to experiment with the possibilities of making marks with all sorts of different materials
- * To develop strength in the muscles in their arm and fingers to be able to control a pencil, so lots of opportunities for physical play are important too
